

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXII.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1894.

NO. 19

HUSTONVILLE.

Rainy weather has prevented the farmers from finishing their corn planting.

Mr. W. M. McAfee arrived home Monday from a trip that has been extended for sometime.

Miss Gertrude Grady, of Columbia, was visiting the Misses Bogle last week. She returned home the first of the week.

Jonathan Russell and Steve Drye went to the Fork fishing for minnows. Mr. Tone Hunn and his daughter were here this week.

Messrs. Jeffrey Yeager and A. J. Rice, of Boyle, were in town Sunday. While here they went calling on some young ladies, who don't say "hello."

Your correspondent was invited to a tea party given by Miss Bessie Moore last Saturday night and the occasion was one as bright as it has ever been his luck to attend.

The visit of the young ladies from Stanford was quite a treat and we hope they will come again soon, for we don't have many pretty girls up here that show themselves.

The botany class, chaperoned by the teachers, went botanizing last Friday. When they got well started it looked as if the whole school was gone, but stepping on the inside you found the house full of bright pupils.

The boys had some fun out of a young man of your town, the other night. They took him out on the Stanford pike and had one fellow on the roadside to fire a shot. When this was done the boys say he simply flew.

William Dinwiddie went to Liberty Friday. M. F. North was summoned to Lancaster Monday on legal business. Prof. B. F. Blakeman was in town Sunday and Monday. While here he made a call on his best girl. Judge Stone, of Liberty, was at the college Monday.

The young ladies of this town are somewhat angry with the reporter for giving them three words by which to address their friends. But some of them say that it was the best thing that could have come out in the news. Girls, don't get too angry and compel us to use names which we can do if necessary.

The Beach Grove Society met last Friday night, their usual time of meeting and entertained a good crowd. Miss Alice Drye, the belle of Hustonville, recited and did herself more than justice. All the society needs is a few more ladies like Miss Alice to make it a complete success. The debate was long and full of wit and sense, that brought down the house with many a hearty laugh. The subject was affirmed: "That Railroad Traffic should be Abolished on Sunday," but the negative was the prevailing side, however. The society will meet again May 11th and a good program is to be rendered, with music at intervals by one of the best musicians in Central Kentucky. The debate will be affirmed: "That the Wife has a Harder Life than the Husband."

HUBLE.

S. E. Owsley sold to John Woods a lot of sheep at about $2.25. Mrs. Chris Engleman has returned to her home in Missouri. H. C. Walter and Wm. Blackerly bought the Catherine Blackerly farm at $27. The Joe Swope farm is to be sold next county court day in Stanford, and there is a chance to buy one of the best farms in this settlement. Julius Leon is with us again for a few days. All are glad to see him. Stephen Ossley, of color, came in late Saturday night, and on going to bed heard one of his fat shouts squeal on the road near by, and on examination found it had been knocked in the head, but the lick took effect too high to kill it at once. So the party missed the pork. The storehouse here is about done, and it speaks well for its contractors, Yeager & Barker. Some hog cholera in this community. The late school law has forced our trustee to have a well opened in school house yard, and T. Smith is the contractor at $25. Other improvements are also demanded of them.

THOSE WHO ARE POSTED.—Will tell you that the finest and healthiest summer resorts in the northwest are located along the Wisconsin Central Lines, among which are Lake Vilna, Fox Lake, Antioch, Burlington, Mukwonago, Waukesha, Neenah, Waupaca, Fishtail, Ashland and Duluth. Tourists and pleasure seekers figuring on their next summer's vacation should bear this in mind and before selecting a route drop a line to Jas. C. Pond, General Passenger Agent of the Wisconsin Central Lines, at Milwaukee, Wis., and he will send you maps, time tables and guide books containing valuable information, which are mailed free upon application.

NOT IF HE KNOWS IT.—Congressman McCleary's successor and opponent will be nominated at Nicholasville on the 5th and 7th of June, respectively. The name of the party of the first part is James Bennett McCleary, and it is not probable that he will permit any party of the second part to forget to remember it.—Louisville Times.

—New York with an assessed valuation of $8,500,000,000 is the richest State in the union. Pennsylvania is next with a valuation of $6,000,000,000.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—There is in Jerusalem a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association which numbers about 80 members.

Eid. E. J. Willis, of Parkland, who used to serve the church at Turnersville, will preach there next Sunday at 11 a. m.

Rev. John Bell Gibson closed his meeting at Corbin with 17 additions, among whom were a Methodist preacher and wife. Six confessed the last night.

The following is the program for the Semi-Annual County Convention at the Christian church, Turnersville, May 19.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was begun in Memphis Wednesday night.

Ten Bishops and over 400 delegates are in attendance.

It is stated that the proportion of drinking saloons to population has decreased in this country since 1873 from one for every 102 people to, in 1893, one every 272. Let the war on the traffic proceed, till every rum saloon is made to attend.

—Bro. Weaver reports a glorious work of grace at Stanford. The "holiness" people had been there and had "torn up" things generally. In their meetings they would bump their heads on the floor to "get an agony on." He preached on Scriptural sanctification, and his sermon was well received, though all the points of the "holiness" preachers were answered. A large number were added to the church. Bro. Weaver speaks in high praise of Pastor Sizemore's work.—Western Recorder.

ADMOURNMENT.

DANVILLE, BOYLE COUNTY.

(Advocate.)

Mrs. Robert Harding entertained the Scribner Club in royal style. Over 30 were present.

Mrs. M. B. McAlister and Mrs. Josephine Evans returned yesterday from Orlando, Fla.

George Cecil, aged 53, died of heart disease. The remains were interred in the Danville cemetery.

In Judge McDowell's court this morning seven negroes were fined a total of $150 for shooting craps. This is right tryin' on the sports.

Mr. Thos. Fox and Miss Mary Morris will be married Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. Q. Davis.

The grand jury only found 22 indictments, but another was summoned and indicted Cane for murder and Charles Chatham for carrying a pistol concealed.

The suit for $1,000 brought against W. S. Hilton, of Junction City, by C. K. Teats, of the same place, for violent treatment and damage to mind and body, resulted in a verdict for Mr. Teats for $25.

Prof. W. K. Argo has resigned the position of principal of the institution for deaf mutes, the resignation to take effect July 1st. Mr. Argo will locate in Colorado, where he has been for some months past for his health.

While Al Hutchings' fast trotter Clover Leaf 2:21, by G. F. Clay, dam by Kentucky Prince was being exercised, the animal struck its left fore foot and cut the back tendon so badly that Dr. Leach thinks it will cause the horse to be laid up for the remainder of the season.

The Big Four Route to Chicago and St. Louis.

The BIG FOUR route has the best terminal facilities at Chicago. All trains enter Chicago and the Illinois Central tracks along six miles of the Lake Front, through the most picturesque portion of the city, and lands passengers in the magnificent New Central Station on Twelfth Street and the Front Street station. The Auditorium, Richard Victoria and Leinen Hall and within two blocks of the State and Washington Street Cable Lines and the South Side Elevated Railway. Convenient stops are also made at Hyde Park Thirty-ninth Street and Twenty-second Street.

Magnificent Vestibuled Trains, Parlor Cars, Wagner Sleeping Cars, Private Compartment Buffet Sleeping Cars and Super Dining Cars. No transfer across Cincinnati to make connections.

Yester evening the Big Four Route to enjoy these privileges. Solid trains between Cincinnati and St. Louis, with Palace Sleeping Cars between St. Louis and Washington, D. C., via Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Chesapeake & Ohio Ry., in connection with the BIG FOUR Route.

The elegant service offered by the BIG FOUR has been greatly improved and is equal to other lines. Night trains are composed of parlor cars throughout, coaches of the latest improved pattern and Wagner Sleeping Cars in service for the first time. Day trains have Parlor and Drawing Rooms and Super Dining Cars, via Palace Buffet Sleeping Cars between St. Louis and Washington, D. C., via Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Chesapeake & Ohio Ry., in connection with the BIG FOUR Route.

Carroll county has a monstrosity in shape of a double-headed calf. It has three eyes, one in the center of its head and one on either side; two sets of jaws and teeth, two tongues, two throats and two swallows. It is being carefully cared for, and sucks two bottles at the same time, drinking about three gallons of milk per day. The owners have refused $1,000 for the freak.

MIDDLEBURG, CASEY COUNTY.

Corn planting will soon be over.

Wheat is looking fine in this locality.

There is said to be a number of base counterfeit half dollars and quarters in circulation here.

—J. J. Spears has several apple trees on which the fruit was not killed. They have just begun to bloom.

A. H. Royalty is teaching singing at Grove. The Sunday-School out there is in a flourishing condition.

The woods are full of candidates for magistrate in this precinct, although the office pays less than $25 per year.

Mrs. F. Delt fell Saturday while out looking after her chickens, and striking her head against a rail, cut an ugly gash just above her eye.

Wild turkeys are occasionally seen in the woods hereabout since the passage of the new game law, and squirrels are as plentiful as snow birds in winter and gentle as cats.

A pack of hounds chased a fox Wednesday morning till it was so nearly exhausted that it took refuge in Mr. T. J. Spears' kitchen. Mr. S. being awakened by the barking of the dogs, went in and calling his son Charlie they attempted to capture it alive. They threw an old coat over it, and Charlie seized it with both hands, but Mr. Fox was not to be taken that way, and with a quick snap bit Charlie through the hand which caused him to relinquish his hold, when Mr. Spears dispatched it with a club. Charlie has a pretty sore hand as a result of his tussle with the varmint; says he will tackle another under the same circumstances.

FARM AND TRADE ITEMS.

Hemp has jumped up to $5 per cwt.

Yeager & Yeager sold to Jacob Fox, of Indianapolis, a bay gelding for $140.

M. S. Baughman sold to Dr. Buchanan, of Indianapolis, a saddle mare for $125.

—Directum, 205, jags from 10 to 15 miles daily. He is said to be in excellent form this year.

—Tharpe has sold to J. W. Bond & Son, McBrayer, 250 bushels of wheat at 55c, at the mill.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

The entries to Harrodsburg trot close May 1st. Five dollars nominates. Write to T. M. Cardwell, secretary, for entry blanks.

I have on hand a 1½ hand mule jack for service which will take the place of the jock, John S. Wells, recently sold. E. P. Woods.

Lee Hiles bought lambs of T. L. Adams, A. Gossett and Len Houston at $12½ per head, and of R. T. Berry and W. J. Hitten at 4½ per pound.—George-town Times.

Entries close May 1st. Write to T. M. Cardwell, Sec'y.

Pace Bros., have about 300 or 400 lambs purchased to go the last of May and the last of June. They paid 5 cts. for May delivery and 4 cts. for June.—Winchester Democrat.

Authorities expect the Australian wheat yield will be the heaviest in the history of this colony. They anticipate there will be a surplus available for export of 11,735,000 bushels.

Liberal premiums given to saddle stallions, mares and geldings at the Harrodsburg Fair, June 27, 28, 29. Write for full particulars and entry blanks to T. M. Cardwell, Sec'y, Harrodsburg.

Mr. W. P. Tate is plowing his corn fields before the grain is up to get ahead of the moles, which he never knew to be so numerous and destructive. The cut worm is also getting in its work extensively.

The Weather Bureau report shows that the last week of April was very favorable to all crops and farm work in districts east of the Rocky mountains. The wheat is everywhere promising and corn planting has progressed rapidly.

It was $120 and not $100 that P. S. Hughes sold a half interest in a 2-year-old Belmont Chief to Judge J. S. Moore. A naught doesn't amount to much, except in the hands of a careless printer.

That classic event, the Chester Cup, such a race as we never see nowadays in this country, was run Wednesday at Chester, England, Lord Penrhyn's Quesasatum being the winner. A champion prize Cheshire cheese of the value of four sovereigns was given to the owners of the first, second and third horses.

The Coxey craze came to an inglorious climax at Washington, Wednesday, when the "general" and two of his lieutenants were rudely arrested and placed in the lock-up, but bail was furnished for their attendance at their trial for disorderly conduct. Coxey declares that he has been deprived of his constitutional right to speak on the Capitol steps or anywhere else, and says if the courts do not grant him redress he will throw the country into the greatest revolution ever known. The marshal of the army of ragamuffins and tramps has issued a manifesto, in which he says, "Liberty lies writhing in her own blood at the nation's capital city to-night, stabbed in the house of her friends by her supposed guardians. Free speech has been suppressed and policemen's clubs have taken the place of the scales of justice."

A few sympathizers in Congress are making fools of themselves by demanding to know by what right the police clubbed and cracked the craniums of the commonwealers, but their resolutions were treated with levity. The parade of the army is described as very grotesque, but it will hardly do to treat the movement as a joke. Determined steps should be taken to nip it in the bud by giving such disturbers as Coxey and his chief followers a time to cogitate in closely confined cells.

The republican victories all over the country growing out of dissatisfaction with the democratic party, which has failed so far to redeem its pledges, has given its members much assurance and a great deal of gall. For instance they really seem to believe that they have a chance to elect a member of Congress in the Louisville district; at least three republicans are aspiring for the nomination there. That party will also make a nomination in this district, if it can find a man fool enough to take it, and has fixed Nicholasville as the place and June 7th as the time for holding a convention for that purpose. There may possibly be some show for republican success in the 5th district, but in the 8th the republican has not been born who can beat James Bennett McCreary.

The Louisville Times, started by Emmet G. Logan and E. Polk Johnson, with Mr. W. N. Haldeman to back them, celebrated its tenth anniversary May 1. Dear Old Polk dropped out long and merry ago, but the other as dear old man is still at the bellows, and is, as he expresses it, making the paper scintillate instead of sermonize, epitomize instead of pad. With R. W. Brown, the indefatigable and tireless, as managing editor and John A. Baird's experienced eye to look after the city news, the Times is fulfilling its manifest destiny of being one of the best newspapers either North or South of the Ohio River.

ANOTHER U. S. Senator has been suddenly called to join the silent majority, making the third within a month. Francis B. Stockbridge, of Michigan, died Monday night of heart disease, while on a visit with his wife to friends in Chicago. He was elected to the Senate in 1887 and again in 1893 and his term would not have expired till 1899. He was not a man of great force, but was regarded as an honest and conservative one.

THERE never was such an improvement in the appearance and general make-up of a paper as in the Lexington Press. New type, new headings and best of all new blood, give the paper now metropolitan air, it has never before assumed. The new staff is as follows: H. T. Duncan, Jr., general manager; Pat. T. Farnsworth, general editor; M. A. Cassidy, assistant editor and business manager; R. J. O'Mahony, turf editor.

New York is attracting many of the brightest young Louisville journalists from home and friends. Mr. Oliver J. Cromwell, managing editor of the Post, whose capacity and perseverance brought him up from the bottom, is the last to be taken with the fever to seek a broader field. He will resign his position tomorrow, greatly to the regret not only of his immediate associates, but the editors of the State general.

God reigns and the government at Frankfort still lives. "General" Jack Gross is back in the adjutant's office, and matters are fast assuming a perpendicularity. This country would go to the demimonde bow wows pretty quick already if it were not for Jack to hold it up by its caudal appendage.

NEARLY all the Indiana towns went republican Tuesday, and that party has charge of the municipal affairs in cities never before in their hands. It is sad. But it is an "off year" and don't count that night.

The sixth anniversary of the Lexington Leader, which it celebrated May day, reminds us to say that its success has been phenomenal. It jumped into the ring with two dailies already running and soon it was Eclipse first and the rest nowhere, even if its politics was republican and its home at the Capitol of democracy. Sam J. Roberts, its founder and editor, is a born newspaper man and a thoroughbred gentleman, and to him belongs all its glory and honor.

THAT man proposes and God disposes, we are ever admonished. Frank Hatton, the distinguished editor who died at Washington, Tuesday, was taken just when he thought he had reached that point where he could enjoy life. A few months ago he declared, "I am now for the first time in my life, ready to live," but when he thought he was best ready to live, he found it was his time to die. It is ever thus, and few there be that can count on the morrow.

COL. JOHN O. HODGES, of the Lexington Observer, doesn't believe in kicking a man when he is down. He was Col. Breckinridge's friend in prosperity and he has not deserted him in adversity. He never loses a chance to get in a good word for him, and takes no stock in the Pharisees who roll their eyes in holy horror and thank God that they are better than other men, for oftener than otherwise they are not.

THE democrats of the 3d Ohio were true to their colors and elected Paul J. Sorg to represent them in Congress by a majority of 3,000. The fight was made on the tariff issue and the republicans not being able to accomplish anything by argument resorted to their strongest weapon—the use of money, but without avail. The 3d Ohio will continue to be represented by a democrat, and a most worthy one at that.

BUILDING associations are assuming tremendous proportions in this country and doing a vast deal of good in assisting those who are unable to buy homes in gradually obtaining them. There are now in the U. S. 5,833 associations, with an aggregate membership of 1,745,725 and $450,667,594 assets. Over 40,000 homes have been built by them for their members.

THE Lexington papers are making as great a nuisance of the Rev. Southgate as they formerly did of Charley Bronston. Hardly a day passes that his position as to the Breckinridge or some other question is not aired till it has really gotten to be monotonous. Let Brer. Southgate and Brer. Bronston each requisit in pace, pro bono publico, e pluribus unum.

KANSAS has a larger proportion of children in school than any other State in the union. So says the report of the National Bureau of Education. She also has more men in the penitentiary, or ought to have.

A DISPATCH from Washington says that Col. Breckinridge has had his whiskers trimmed preparatory to his campaign. If all signs do not fail in dry weather, he'll have his hair cut before he is out many days.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

WHILE sculling Wednesday Manual Barrow accidentally cut Tom Nunnelly's hand very badly. Both parties are col-ored.

THE Cincinnati Southern will sell round-trip tickets at one fare to those who want to go to Lexington Saturday to hear Billy Breckinridge open his campaign.

THE weather continues perfect for farming and delightful for living. The trees have in a few days come out in full leaf and all nature smiles in new and beautiful life.

COXEY is drawing many people to his army, but the low prices on sterling silverware novelties that Danks, the Jeweler, is now showing will convince the people that his store is the place to trade.

THE report that the L. & N. would take off its night trains on this division was no doubt started by a jealous Lancaster man, who feels sore over the fact that even its little telegraph office is going to be taken away.

AS everybody and his uncle will be at Lexington to hear Col. Breckinridge tomorrow afternoon, it has been decided to have the speaking in Woodlawn Park, instead of the Opera House. All the railroads will run cheap excursions.

TWINS, both girls, are the latest additions to John Taylor's family. The mother, Mrs. Clara Doty Taylor, who used to write poetry and other contributions to these columns, is getting very much like the woman that lived in the snow.

IF you like that kind of thing, we are sure that the Uncle Tom's Cabin that is coming is the thing you would like. Remember the prices are fixed to suit the times—25, 35 and 50 cents. The latter for reserved seats. Secure one at once at the usual place.

WHEN the band begins to play and the donkeys and the dogs begin to go round, you will see people flocking to Walton's Opera House as they never flock before. Uncle Tom's Cabin may be, and in point of fact, is a miserable old chestnut, but it draws like a circus and pays the managers. See the parade on the 9th and you will go to the show that night.

—The Cincinnati May Festival is assured of financial success. Sale of seats by auction closed Wednesday. Total receipts thus far, including premiums, $33,042.

THE Centre College commencement will occur June 13th at 10 o'clock, A. M. Gov. Mathews, of Indiana, will deliver the Alumni address on the evening of the 12th. Among the large number of graduates are C. C. Bagby, of Danville; T. B. Burke, of Shelby City; P. T. Chinn and F. D. Curry, of Harrodsburg; Bent Goodloe and L. Q. Nelson, of Danville; Casey M. Owles, of Lancaster and Merle-dith E. Prewitt, of Hustonville.

CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS is now open to visitors, as will be seen by announcement in another column. Mr. Gus Hofmann, the genial proprietor, was here Wednesday and told us that he would leave nothing undone to make this the best season in the history of this "Saratoga of the South." He has placed the board at $8 to $15 per week, according to service and location of rooms, cheap enough even for these hard times.

THE worst fake that has visited Stanford for some time is the individual, who draws a crowd for the sale of patent nostrums and appliances, by pretending to preach the gospel of the meek and lowly Nazarine. He takes as his text the fiery injunction, "Don't go to Hell," but if he comes back here with that kind of racket again, the boys will make him go contrary to his advice. They will insist that he go to hell himself and that p. d. q.

THE great Old Fellows' Temple at Cincinnati, the finest in America, will be dedicated May 15, when there will be the greatest parade ever witnessed in the Queen City. The Q. & C. will sell tickets on the 15th good to return on the 17th at 1½ fares for the round trip. The Queen & Crescent Route occupies the larger part of the building for its general office. A general holiday for the entire city. Ample accommodations for all. Don't fail to go. Ask agents for particulars. J. S. Leith, T. P. A., Lexington, Ky., W. C. Rinearson, G. P. A., Cincinnati, Ohio.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—John C. Tarkington and Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Ben Woods, were married in Boyle Tuesday. The bride is just 15.

—Ex-Minister Truxton Beale and Miss Harrist, daughter of the late Secretary Blaine, were married in Washington Monday.

—Over 1,000 pretty Irish girls arrived at New York Monday in search of husbands. They will go West, where women are scarce and in demand.

—W. H. Greenwood, aged 76 years, was married to Miss Mattie Hooper, aged 23 years, at the residence of James Hooper, April 22.—Murray Ledger.

—A West Virginia lover was overtaken by the brother of the bride-elect Tuesday and fatally shot, dying in the arms of the girl whom he had hoped to marry.

—We extend hearty congratulations to ex-Editor Thomas H. Fox on his new found happiness. He was married on Tuesday to Miss Mary Moberly, of Boyle, who is said to be a very wealthy lady with many accomplishments. Mr. and Mrs. Fox will live in Richmond, where he has a position in Collector Rodde's office.

—Calloway Nance, a clever widower of the West End, was married last week to Miss Emily Gray, of Boyle. They drove to Harrodsburg and were united after God's holy ordinance by Rev. Mr. Taylor. After the ceremony Mr. Nance and his handsome bride left for Cincinnati where they spent several days. The INTERIOR JOURNAL extends its warmest congratulations to the happy couple.

—There are not many girls with the experience of this one from Newport and it is well that there is not. She was married when 12 years old, became a mother when 13, was devored at 14 married again at 15, was divorced again at 17, and married the third time at 19 and was deserted at 20 with three children. Now she is in the lunatic asylum, having gone crazy over the death of her baby by starvation.

—News has been received here that Dr. D. L. Frye, of Kirksville, and Miss Emma Middleton, of the same place, were married on the 23d. The doctor formerly lived here, where he made many friends, who will be glad to learn of his good fortune, for his bride is said to be one of the most accomplished of ladies. She is the only daughter of Dr. Middleton, with whom Dr. Fry is associated in the drug business. The doctor was always a good judge of fine women and we are glad to know he has at last got one of his own. Rev. John Bell Gibson performed the ceremony in his usual impressive manner.

—Honors and joys are coming thick and fast to Hon. A. J. Carroll, speaker of the Lower House of Representatives. Though he was always at his post in Frankfort and made one of the best of speakers, he seems to have had time for love making, and that his efforts to win the heart and hand of a fair maiden were eminently successful. The announcement is made that on the 6th day of the month of roses he will lead to the hymenial altar Miss Sarah Holt, daughter of the ex-chief justice, who is described as a lady of rare beauty and attractiveness. Mr. Speaker, we salute you and wish you all the joys that can come of a union of souls with but a single thought and hearts that beat as one.

—The Cincinnati May Festival is assured of financial success. Sale of seats by auction closed Wednesday. Total receipts thus far, including premiums, $33,042.

—The band begins to play and the donkeys and the dogs begin to go round, you will see people flocking to Walton's Opera House as they never flock before. Uncle Tom's Cabin may be, and in point of fact, is a miserable old chestnut, but it draws like a circus and pays the managers. See the parade on the 9th and you will go to the show that night.

—The report that the L. & N. would take off its night trains on this division was no doubt started by a jealous Lancaster man, who feels sore over the fact that even its little telegraph office is going to be taken away.

—As everybody and his uncle will be at Lexington to hear Col. Breckinridge tomorrow afternoon, it has been decided to have the speaking in Woodlawn Park, instead of the Opera House. All the railroads will run cheap excursions.

—TWINs, both girls, are the latest additions to John Taylor's family. The mother, Mrs. Clara Doty Taylor, who used to write poetry and other contributions to these columns, is getting very much like the woman that lived in the snow.

—If you like that kind of thing, we are sure that the Uncle Tom's Cabin that is coming is the thing you would like. Remember the prices are fixed to suit the times—25, 35 and 50 cents. The latter for reserved seats. Secure one at once at the usual place.

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—Circuit court begins here May 14.

—Forepaugh's circus will be here next Tuesday.

—Miss Gertrude Lester entertained a few of her friends Tuesday evening.

—Miss Lucy Jones, of London, was here this week to attend the Noe-Standill wedding.

—Mr. James F. Grinstead, of Louisville, was here Sunday to attend Mrs. J. M. Mahan's funeral.

—Lightning struck a house at Bird E. mines last Thursday and injured two men, one of them so badly that reports it was thought he died.

—Everything is quiet among our miners and no trouble is expected, except a great amount of stealing and petit larceny as most of the miners that went out on the strike have nothing to live on.

—Miss Ida Stinson, daughter of Conn-ty Judge James Stinson, died at her home last Friday morning of brain fever. She was about 19 years of age and had suffered for several weeks with the dreadful disease that caused her death. She was a member of the Christian church, Elder J. E. Terry preached her funeral Friday afternoon and she was buried in the family burying ground Saturday morning.

—Mrs. J. M. Mahan, who has been suffering with that dreadful disease of consumption, for several months, died at her home last Friday night. Rev. J. N. Prestridge preached her funeral at the Baptist church Sunday morning to a large crowd, after which her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery here. Mrs. Mahan was a woman liked by everyone, a devoted member of the Baptist church and leaves a husband and three little children to mourn her loss.

—May weddings are on a boom with us. On Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock, Mr. J. C. T. Noe, a rising young lawyer of Springfield, and Miss Sidney Stanfill were married at the home of the bride's father. Mr. Noe was a teacher in the Williamsburg Institute one year and became quite popular with our people. Miss Stanfill is one of our prettiest young ladies, being the one Col. Bobbitt wrote to I. J. some time ago and described as the angel that St. Peter had permitted to escape. The young couple left immediately for the home of the groom.

—At 10 o'clock Mr. A. J. Meadows, the junior member of the firm of J. M. Meadows & Co., and Miss Phronia, the youngest daughter of Mr. L. P. Weisner, were married. Mr. Meadows graduated from the Williamsburg Institute last June and will soon be one of the most prosperous business men and while he is a good business man he can select a wife as he has secured the hand of one of our most charming girls. Both of the weddings were very quiet, only the immediate families being present.

—H. T. Bush has lost four sows with the last few days while trying to pig.

Messrs. Richard Cobb and J. H. Harlan have also lost several each in the same way.

—W. M. Lackey bought of Silas Anderson, 13 cattle averaging 800 pounds at 3½c; of James George, of Pulaski, 22 averaging 1,000 pounds at the same price, and of F. D. Rigney, of Casey, two averaging 1,300 at same price.

SEASON OF 1894

Crab Orchard, Ky.

To the Public.—Since its discovery by Daniel Boone nearly a century or more ago the health of Crab Orchard Springs has been the Mecca of health and pleasure seekers. With its healing waters, ozone, atmospheric and home-like surroundings, it is indeed a most invigorating and restorative place.

The vicinity abounds with scenes to charm the painter and inspire the poet. Sylvan walks for the lover, embowered drives for the weary. Bowling, Billiard and Dancing Halls for the light hearted, and Hunting and the sportsman. Special attention given to the training of horses

TEMPERANCE CHAMPIONS.

I can show plain in Commandments Ten, That murder must not come from men; And most foul crimes of which we think, Originate from taking drink.

Man's liberty you only mean to plan? Proud, noble, reasoning, thinking man? Free agents! We admit this all. Though not free to make his brother fall

Into dark pits where drink will lead, To give to bring distress and need. Into lone homes where drink should reign, Leaving the slime of the serpent's stain.

Not free to go to weeping wife, With maddened brain and words of strife; To take from children morsel meant, And give home cheerless discontent.

Not free to make some mother-heart To write and groan with painful smart Of cruel stings, her child may throw Around—beneath where she may go.

"By bread man does not live alone; Thunders from Heaven in mighty tone; And none need fear by honest gain, The "Staff of Life" e'er to obtain.

Ah! not this ne'er will be denied, If energy and push are but applied, But the motive is—to gain this bread, By sweat from honest, manly hand.

Then put not wine to thy brother's lip, At first he may gently, lightly sip; This is God's law! then tempter think; Oh! do not urge thy friend to drink.

The Boot tells us that long ago, At Cana's feast that wine did flow, But Christ, with His own hand Divine, Turned crystal water into wine!

Not such as would the brain set fire, With fleshly thoughts and foul desire To skulk and plot, devise and plan, To slay, mayhap, his fellow man.

And now, the time is just ahead, When "Stone" will not be given for bread, Nor "serpent" to the children sweet, Instead of "fish" that they may eat!

Then peace and joy will reign supreme, "Free agency" will be the theme; Free agents—but to do the right, But never free to drink and fight.

And in this mighty, coming fight, Just pause and ask: "Who's for the Right?" The answer comes along the line— "Tis woman, prayers! and Hand Divine!"

Sure conquerors! this stalwart force, Right will prevail, though roughs oppose; Then Right's fair banner will not trail, Nor hear on breeze the opposer's wail.

Ah! on your side no prayers ascend, And earnest with the angels blend; No pure-souled woman's voice to hear: "March bravely on! we give you cheer."

No, while you fight, no knee is bent, No silent prayer to Heaven is sent, That Right may conquer—Right may reign, O'er all this sunny, southern plain!

DRINK CONDEMNED.

What Medical Authorities Have to Say On the Drink Habit.

It is not so well known as it should be that the best medical thought of the world, for a generation, and more, has been opposed to the habitual use of liquors of any kind as beverages; and that, for the past score of years, many of the most eminent authorities in the world of physicians have taken the ground that the total abstainer lives longer, is stronger, more sound in mind and body, than the man who drinks, even though the latter be merely occasional. That is, they believe that total abstinence should be the rule with everyone who wishes to conserve the best powers of mind and body. Many of the authorities on this subject declare that the use of alcoholic liquors does not nourish the body nor improve the health, but is at all times harmful, and that in proportion to the amount drunk and the frequency of the potations, by the citation of a few medical authorities of the highest class.

Sir Henry Thompson says: "I am of opinion that the habitual use of wine, beer, or spirits, is a dietary error, say for nineteen persons out of twenty. In other words, the great majority of people, at any age or of either sex, will enjoy better health, both of body and mind, and will live longer without any alcoholic drinks whatever, than with habitual indulgence in their use, even although such use be what is popularly understood as moderate."

Sir Andrew Clark said, in his eminence: "I am bound to say that for all honest work alcohol never helps a human soul. Every adult man who finds himself after trial—and every man that tries to be a thousand times better without alcohol, should not resume it, because he will work better, he will enjoy more, he will have a longer exemption from disease, he will probably live longer, and certainly he will be better in all the higher relations of life."

Prof. Sydney Ringer, in his "Hand-book of Therapeutics," written in 1880, says: "Experience plainly shows, that for the healthy, alcohol is not necessary nor even a useful article of diet. Varied, repeated and prolonged experience, and the testimony of many medical men, prove that troops endure fatigue and the extremes of climate better if alcohol is altogether abstained from. The experience of the celebrated Moscow campaign showed this; so also, quite recently, the Red River expedition. During arduous marches it has always been found that, without alcohol, the health of the men is exceptionally good, but as soon as spirits are allowed disease breaks out. Modern trainers recognize the fact that the power of sustained exertion and resistance to fatigue is best promoted by abstaining from alcohol."

The British Medical Journal (March 11, 1886), in an article on "The Truth About Alcohol," says: "We take it as conclusively proved, in the first place, that alcohol is not a necessary food and that the most perfect physical and intellectual vigor is compatible with rigid total abstinence. We may go a step further, and confidently assert that people in perfect health are, as a rule, better without alcohol. The evils of intemperance are manifest, and improbable. The excellent health enjoyed by the great and increasing army of teetotalers; the returns of insurance and benefit societies; the example of abstaining nations, seems to us proof positive that total abstinence is at least harmless and safe. Alcohol may be accorded a place as a luxury, it certainly has a definite value as a medicine, but we think it most desirable, in the interests alike of truth and national morality, that the medical profession should authoritatively and unambiguously declare that it is in no sense a necessity."

In view of the array of facts which we have now given, bearing on the various phases of the pleas for the use of intoxicants, and the further fact that the position of these high medical authorities is not generally known by the public at large, we ask: Do not the people need education? A New York prohibition newspaper, in a late issue, was lamenting that "the cause does not grow rapidly enough." The way to make it grow is to educate the people to a full and complete understanding of the facts we have given, and others in the same line. When they are fully understood, the great mass of intelligent Americans will be ready to join in the movement to suppress the traffic, and to pulverize the rum power.—Toledo Blade.

INCREASE OF INSANITY.

An Opinion That Bad Whisky Is Largely Responsible.

"There has been a remarkable increase of insanity in this city in recent years," said Assistant Warden Rickard, of Bellevue hospital, the other evening. "Here at this hospital, where most of the insanity cases are examined, a case of insanity was not so common twenty years ago as to fail to attract the attention of everybody connected with the institution. I remember that we would go out of our way to get a look at an insane person. Now we have about two thousand insanity cases a year at the hospital."

Mr. Rickard opened a book, which showed that during the year 1893 1,159 men and 945 women had been sent to the hospital as insane patients. Of the whole number only 103 had been discharged as cured or not insane, while 778 men and 745 women had been sent to the asylums on the islands, and the rest had been sent to other institutions.

"Most of the insane persons die within a few years after being sent to the asylums," Mr. Rickard said, "because their insanity is caused by one disease or another which is sure to prove fatal in a short time, but some of the insane persons live in the asylums for many years. Only the other day I noticed a report of the death of a man who had been an insane patient on the island for forty years. From my observation of insanity cases here, I have come to believe that the increase of insanity is largely due to the use of impure liquor. The ordinary whisky sold now contains so much poison that it is liable to make any person who drinks it crazy."—N. Y. Tribune.

BITS AND BREVITIES.

Dr. Bock, of Leipzig, says: "Beer is brutalizing; wine, impassion; whisky infuriates."

It is officially estimated that there are now remaining in bond in the United States 130,561,910 gallons of whisky.

It is announced that the ladies of President Cleveland's cabinet have agreed not to furnish punch-bowls at their weekly receptions.

Miss GOULD, of the Women's Help society, London, says that drink more than anything else puts women wage-earners at the mercy of the sweater.

A NEW Minnesota statute punishes the drunkard by a fine from ten dollars to forty dollars for the first offense, from forty dollars to sixty dollars for the second and ninety dollars in the workhouse for the third.

"TOTAL Abstinence vs. Moderate Drinking," was the subject recently for debate by one of the literary societies in Glasgow university. The former won by sixty-six to thirty-two.

SO MANY accidents have been traced to drunken employees on the Trans-Andes line in Chile that the directors have decided to discharge anyone who shall be caught under the influence of liquor. Good for Chile!

AUBURN, Kas., a town of one thousand inhabitants, discourages the great Kentucky interest of whisky-making. The village has not had an open saloon for fifteen years. Four elections in that time have turned upon the question of licensing the sale of strong drink, but at no election has the affirmative vote reached forty-five. Meanwhile the churches flourish, and Auburn is well pleased to be singular among its sister villages.

BEER is one of the things that the common sailor aboard a United States man-of-war may, if he will, buy from one or another mess steward, and Jack avails himself of the privilege in moderation. It is about the only alcoholic stimulant that Jack gets without smuggling it on board, for strong drinks are kept only by the apothecary or the surgeon, and Jack does not buy wine. Very enterprising sailors sometimes save up their beer from day to day until enough is accumulated to yield a considerable degree of alcoholic elation.

In commenting upon some of these differences in mortality the Registrar-General says: "The mortality of men who are directly engaged in the liquor trade is appalling. The death-rate of brewers, innkeepers, publicans, and generally all dealers in wines, spirits and beer, and of inn and hotel servants, is above the average death-rate." It will be seen that alcoholic consumption results in a high death-rate, in most striking contrast with the more generally abstaining farmer, gardener, and minister.

SUCH an appeal must be made to the drinker and the drunkard as shall impress upon his stupefied, drunken brain the fact that he is more responsible, more guilty for the curse of intemperance, than anyone else can be. Also we must rid ourselves of the delusion that the drinker is a slave, except in a few rare instances, to an inherited appetite. If the brother inherits this uncontrollable appetite, why does not his sister bring into the world the same inheritance? By the most powerful motives, by the severest popular restraint, deter the young man from forming the drunkard's habit.

THE evils of total abstinence are unproved and improbable. The excellent health enjoyed by the great and increasing army of teetotalers; the returns of insurance and benefit societies; the example of abstaining nations, seems to us proof positive that total abstinence is at least harmless and safe. Alcohol may be accorded a place as a luxury, it certainly has a definite value as a medicine, but we think it most desirable, in the interests alike of truth and na-

SWINGING SONG.

A hammock gently swinging,
A mother bends to sing,
She to her baby singing
With heart all full of love.
The little maiden swaying
Beneath the greenwood tree
Has set her heart to saying:
"Love me as I love thee."
So swaying, singing slowly
Her loved one to and fro,
Her heart with rapture holy
Out to her babe doth go,
And while her thoughts are straying
Among the days to be
Her heart is ever saying:
"Love me as I love thee."

Another hammock swinging,
A lover bonds above,
He to his sweetheart singing
With heart all full of love.
The lovely maiden swaying
Beneath the greenwood tree
Has set his heart to saying:
"Love me as I love thee."
So swaying, singing slowly
His loved one to and fro,
His heart with rapture holy
Out to his love doth go,
And while his thoughts are straying
Among the days to be
His heart is ever saying:
"Love me as I love thee."

DAVE'S BROKEN LEG.

It Caused a Romance Among the Berkshire Hills.

It was away up in western Massachusetts just where the famous old post road through the Berkshire hills winds itself into New Ashford. The black vanguard of an approaching summer storm crept along the valley behind us, and a few stray raindrops already warned that it was time to seek for shelter. We turned in at the open gate of the vine-covered porch of the first farmyard, and riding up to the vine-covered porch of the quaint old house lifted our wheels to protected spots at either side of the paneled door. It may have been presuming upon hospitality as yet untried, but then no one stops at such conventionality in the Berkshires, and were we not in the Berkshires? The storm burst, and we sat on the porch beside our faithful steeds, watching the clouds hurry by, the tall trees bend in the eddying wind and the cooling water fall to the thirsty earth. Somehow the smoke of our cigarettes seemed strangely out of place, in that old fashioned spot, and Harvey observed that he would have felt more comfortable with an old brier and a package of plug cut. A quiet half hour slipped away, while the storm increased rather than diminished, and realizing that we were to be weather bound for a few hours at least the necessity of a luncheon became apparent, and Harvey arose to the attack. Harvey is an actor, in season, and what he has learned in the matter of picking up meals on the western circuits helps him immeasurably in summer vacations. Repeated beating upon the door failed, however, to elicit the slightest response from the inmates, and my anticipatory dreams of a soft-eyed, rustic Ganymede went gloomily to pieces.

"There must be a corpse in the house," remarked Harvey reassuringly, leaning upon his bicycle and turning on me a look of hungry resignation. I was framing in my mind a neat reply, more sarcastic than apropos, when the oaken door suddenly opened inward, and an extremely pretty girl with long, fair, golden hair and big blue eyes, confronted us. Surprise was mutual, but she seemed the most confused.

"There must be a corpse in the house," remarked Harvey reassuringly, leaning upon his bicycle and turning on me a look of hungry resignation. I was framing in my mind a neat reply, more sarcastic than apropos, when the oaken door suddenly opened inward, and an extremely pretty girl with long, fair, golden hair and big blue eyes, confronted us. Surprise was mutual, but she seemed the most confused.

"Good-by, my sons, and God be with you. You have helped him to save my Dave, and he will bless you for it. I've always heard that actors and newspaper men were very bad, indeed, but I'll never believe it again. Good-by." And then Dave, on Clemmie's arm, hobbled down to the old vine-wound gate, and there we left them standing in the shadow of the great elms and waving a parting that we had promised should not be for long.

Neither of us had much to say as we gazed along at the foot of the emerald hills, and, for my parts, tears would have come easier than words.

"That was an odd remark of Clemmie's this morning," said Harvey at length, "about losing a ring and making us all swear to return it when found."

"I thought so at the time," I answered.

Just then he divested into his coat pocket, and producing his cigarette case opened it with an exclamation of surprise.

"What's wrong?" I queried, riding alongside. In reply he held out the case, and there, on the cigarette, lay Clemmie's little turquoise ring.

"Shall you keep your promise?" I asked.

"Of course," said he, fastening the jewel securely to his watch chain. "Of course I will—but, say, you might postpone writing that pastoral play for me until I return the ring. There may be a new suggestion for you"—George Taggart, in Journalist.

"Only a mile or so," she replied without stopping, "up the road." (She pronounced it "rad" but I am writing this in English.) Harvey caught her arm, and pulled her back to the sheltering porch.

"But you must not run a mile or so," he cautioned, "in such a storm as this, without hat, shawl, or shoes. It will kill you. I will go for the doctor. My wheel moves faster than your little feet." The girl hesitated a moment and then, as Harvey stood ready to start away, thanked him shortly and gave directions for finding the doctor's house.

"All right. Good-by," he shouted, leaping into the saddle. "You take care of Dave."

"Oh, no—no," she answered confusedly. "You will excuse me. Dave is hurt. I must go for the doctor," and ran by us and down the steps into the rain, lifting her calico skirts just high enough for us to see that her pretty feet were but thinly covered with light slippers. Harvey was at her side in an instant.

"Pardon me," he said. "Where does the doctor live?"

"Only a mile or so," she replied without stopping, "up the road." (She pronounced it "rad" but I am writing this in English.) Harvey caught her arm, and pulled her back to the sheltering porch.

"The New Harrodsburg Fair, besides its guaranteed purse to trotters and pacers, will open a stake for saddle mares and geldings of any age, to close June 1st, when it takes $5 to nominate and $2 50 to start, payable the evening before. Amount of stake guaranteed $150. Write for entry blanks to T. M. Cardwell, secretary, Harrodsburg, Ky."

"Oh, dear, I hope he'll hurry!" said the girl turning to me as Harvey shot out on the road, and sped away through the mud and rain faster than he had ever run from the villain in the play. I thought a reply unnecessary.

"Perhaps I might assist you," I ventured. "I am a bit of an amateur physician. May I see Dave?"

She led the way into the narrow hallway, up the creaking staircase, wall-papered at the sides in imitation of white marble, and into a stuffy little chamber just under the dripping eaves. A great, deep-chested, sunburned young fellow lay upon a tiny iron bedstead, while one muscular leg hung over the edge, shattered and bleeding. An old woman with soft gray hair and the eyes of a girl bent above him and called his name again and again, in tones of the most piteous tenderness. As we entered she turned to my pretty guide, and, regardless of a strange presence, cried:

"He is dead, Clemmie, dead! My Dave is dead!" and fell at the side of the little bed, sobbing and crying. The girl quickly gilded by me, and placing her hand upon the man's chest, said quietly:

"He is not dead—only unconscious."

I drew near and saw at once that she was right. The limb had been injured in some farming accident and an artery broken. I set about to stop the flow of blood. The girl brought me a bit of tape, and together we bound it tightly about the bleeding limb, but it was not strong enough, and the flow was only decreased. I tore a strip from the counterpane and I wound it over the tape, and this was a decided improvement. Meanwhile the poor mother had fainted of nervous exhaustion, and the girl busied herself administering restoratives. I was just beginning to wish myself back on Park row, when Harvey's familiar voice resounded through the house, and in another minute he and the doctor, covered from head to foot with mud, were with me.

"Brought the doc along on my coasters," explained Harvey. "His horse was too slow for the case."

The doctor promptly ordered the girl to remove her mother, and then with our assistance set the broken bones, bound up the leg and gave the patient a light injection of morphine. By this time the old lady had recovered and was back again. The doctor reassured her in a few words and cautioned against disturbing the sleeper.

"Let him sleep as long as he will," he said, "and I'll have him about in a fortnight!"

"A fortnight!" exclaimed the mother. "Why, what will become of the farm?" He was getting in the hay when the horse shied, and he went under the rake and was hurt. We cannot do that work. Clemmie can only look after the cows and chickens and the garden, and I'm too frail to help her. Oh! Dave, if we should lose you—"turning to the bed—"I would be all over."

The alacrity with which Harvey and I offered to remain on the scene and play farmhands until Dave was well was, I thought, only equaled by Clemmie's seconding of the proposal, and we staid.

Those three weeks—it was three before Dave could walk—were a beautiful Arcadian dream—a breath of a life we had never known before. It was all novelty, all interest to us, and Clemmie was a most excellent instructor in the gentle art of farming. Every night when we had done milking the cows, feeding and watering the stock and all the hundred other things that rustics have to do, Harvey would say:

"There is no getting around it, you've got to write a pastoral play for me when we get where there are pen and ink. If, after this, I can't out-Whitcomb and out-Prouty-Prouty I want to know." And it seemed like dropping the curtain on the prettiest sort of a play when one sunny August morning we rolled our wheels out and pointed them for Pittsfield. The trio of the old house stood upon the quaint little perch and watched us oil up and make ready. Dave was just able to be about and help himself. There were tears in the old mother's eyes when she held our hands and said:

PERSONAL POINTS.

Mrs. SUSAN WARREN is quite ill.

Mrs. MATTIE PAXTON went to Louisville Tuesday.

Mrs. W. J. SPAKES was down from Mt. Vernon Tuesday and Wednesday shopping.

Mrs. WAYNE COOK and wife, of Corrydon, Ind., are visiting the family of his brother, Dr. L. B. Cook.

Mrs. J. T. JOHNSON took Mrs. America Rout to Louisville yesterday to visit his wife, who is her grand-daughter.

Mrs. J. B. GUYN, of Paint Lick, was here Wednesday to see his wife, who is under treatment of Dr. Carpenter.

Mrs. D. A. TWADDLE and family have moved to the Sam Reid farm near Pleasant Point, which he recently bought.

Mrs. J. G. SHEA, general yard master of the C. & O. at Handley, W. Va., is visiting his old friends in this section.

Andy J. FISH, of Mt. Vernon, was in town Wednesday. He had just recovered from a very severe attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. ALICE SPARROW, of Marion, who came up to the burial of her sister, Mrs. John A. Hendren, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. LILLIAN FORSYTHE and Bessie Givens, of Lincoln county, are with Mrs. L. B. Givens—Harrodsburg sayings.

S. W. MENEFER and R. M. Newland left Wednesday for Cumberland river near Somerset to spend some 10 days fishing and hunting.

Mrs. MARY F. WELLS, of Junction City, returning from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Charley Turner, at Livingston, spent Tuesday night with Mrs. Rannie Burks.

Mr. and Mrs. WM. CHESTERFIELD, of Kingsville, were here yesterday. They tell us the canning factory is progressing finely and they will be ready for work Aug. 1.

Mr. FRANK SHERMAN, late of Ghent, Belgium, the clever gentleman who goes ahead of the Uncle Tom Cabin Co. was here Tuesday arranging for the coming of his show.

A DISPATCH from Van Wert, O., says that Miss Lucy Johns was seriously burned by natural gas Wednesday. She will be remembered as the excellent teacher of vocal music at the college, and as a very superior vocalist herself.

Mr. ROY BEAZLEY, son of Mrs. Mildred Beazley, of this neighborhood, has announced himself a candidate for the democratic nomination for jailer of Casey. If he win the honor the rub will come in the final election. Casey is pretty generally republican.

DR. A. D. JAMES, representative from Muhlenberg and ex-commissioner to the World's Fair, member of the constitutional convention, &c., was here Tuesday, in the interest of the Louisville Commercial and scoured many subscribers to that excellent paper. The doctor is a hustler and if he hasn't got his eagle eye fixed on the republican nomination for some State office, we confess to being a poor diagnoser.

CITY AND VICINITY.

I AM agent for the Lexington Steam Laundry. Bring me your washing. Jesse D. Wearen.

THERE is no stove that gives the satisfaction "The New Vapor Process" does. W. H. Wearen & Co.

I AM on the market for your wool and will pay as much as anybody. Sacks, ready any time. L. M. Bruce, Stamford.

BE SURE to see me at Stanford before you sell your wool, or Jess Rout at McKinney, or Wm. Rout at Moreland, or at Hustonville. Wm. Moreland.

OVER 800 sample hats just received latest styles and shapes, no two alike. We have hats to suit everyone at less than manufacturer's prices, $4 stiffs at $2.50, &c. B. F. Jones & Son.

WOOL.—See D. S. Carpenter at Hustonville, before you sell your wool, it will be to your advantage. He is Green's old stand and will pay cash for your wool. Don't have to haul it any farther.

NEWEST and nobbiest goods at Danks'.

THE young men have engaged the Opera House for a dance Friday night, May 11, and for a big hop about June 1.

THE subject for the debate by the Caledonian Society at Turnersville Saturday night is "Which was the greater man, R. E. Lee or U. S. Grant?"

WANTED—100,000 lbs. of wool. Top prices guaranteed. Call on me at McKinney or John Ellis at Hustonville, or J. M. Durham at Middleburg. F. M. Ware.

A LITTLE learning continues to be a dangerous thing. A negro boy of 14, Boyd Shelby, was given two years at Danville for forging a check, on which he got the money.

OUR great sale of sample shoes has been the talk of the town; no wonder when we are selling $3.50 and $4 shoes and slippers for $1.98. Another lot just received. B. F. Jones & Son.

WHATEVER you buy in Jewelry, buy it in sterling silverware and don't fail to see the line that Danks, the Jeweler, is showing. This is a pointer for you. If you want the latest styles, see our stock.

We can give you prices that defy competition. Watch our window this week. It is full of new ideas. Danks, the Jeweler.

ACQUITTED.—A few days ago Albert Hommel, who keeps a restaurant at Rowland, got out garnishes against 14 railroad men, who owed him for meals and they retaliated by swearing out warrants charging him with selling whisky unlawfully. The three cases were tried before Judge Varnon and a jury, Wednesday, when Mr. Hommel was promptly acquitted.

AFTER Pat Cane was indicted for the murder of Marshal Silcox, his case was called at Danville Tuesday, but he wanted time for the excitement to wear down and at his instance it was continued till next court, and he was returned to jail without bail. Further information shows that the murder was even more willful than reported and had the people taken the law into their own hands and hung the murderer they would have been more justifiable than mobs usually are. The law ought to break his neck though, but it is doubtful if it will.

U. T. C. C.—Which being interpreted mean's Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. and it will be with us next Wednesday night.

Marney & McGowen, are the proprietors, and their advance man, Mr. F. Sherman, says they have the best show of the kind on the road. Its Topsy, Miss Etta Aker, can't be beat, and her songs, dances and banjo specialties carry the house by storm. Old Uncle Tom, Little Eva, Lawyer Marks, the donkey and the blood hounds, a splendid band and a superb orchestra combine to make the show a good one, even without its many special features. Admission 25, 35 and 50c. Reserved seats at W. B. McRoberts'.

THE Royce Entertainers are not misnamed. The company is small but each member is an artist and music and fun follow fast and furious. Mr. Ray L. Royce is hardly a peer as an impersonator and he was encoraged again and again, responding each time with something new and in the most good natured manner.

Miss Lizzie H. Royce is a very gifted musician and showed herself the mistress of many instruments, while Art C. Moore as banjoist, mandolinist, guitarist, etc., displayed a most remarkable musical talent. The entire show was greatly enjoyed and we take great pleasure in recommending it to the public.

AGED, BUT NOT INFIRM.—Mr. M. D. Hardin, the noted boniface of Monticello, is here, with his wife, reviewing the scenes and recalling the events of his childhood and early life. Eighty-four years ago the old gentleman first saw the light in the house now owned and occupied by Capt. H. T. Bush. His father, who was James Hardin, and came from Virginia, bought the place of the distinguished old preacher of those days, Jeremiah Vardeman, giving him a negro woman and some boot for it; at his sale it brought $23, while double that amount wouldn't get it now. Mr. Hardin is the last but one of 11 children, the other two being Timothy Hardin, of Milledgeville, aged 79 and Samuel Hardin, 72, of Crab Orchard. He went to Monticello 63 years ago and for 40 years of the time kept the Hardin Hotel, and made much money and many friends. He has had three wives, the first two bearing him a child each and the third and present, who was a Miss Worsham, an even dozen. Nine of the 14 are living, including the merchant and hotel keeper of this place, Mr. Mark Hardin. For one of his age, Mr. Hardin is remarkably preserved physically and mentally. His step is steady and he is the same jolly disposed man, which has always made him friends and popularity. The I. J. enjoyed his call and hopes to have him make many more during his annual visits to his son.
